

Ten feelings, and the words for them

You already know what these feelings are. Today you get the exact English noun for each one, the adjective that goes with it, and the grammar to say what you are doing right now instead of what you usually do.

TASK 1 Name the feeling in pairs, book closed

Student A reads 1 to 5 out loud. Student B answers without looking at the page. Then swap for 6 to 10. One word from the box for each situation, and every word is used once.

USE EACH WORD ONCE

sympathy

confidence

despair

relief

guilt

amazement

frustration

joy

anxiety

embarrassment

	THE SITUATION	THE FEELING
1	You have been waiting twenty minutes for the bus. It comes, it is full, and it drives straight past you.
2	Your friend tells you her dog died on Sunday. You do not know what to say, but you feel it with her.
3	You get the exam back. You were certain you had failed it. You passed.
4	You walk into the wrong classroom and thirty people turn round to look at you.
5	Your cousin sends you a video of the mascletà. Forty seconds of pure noise, and you cannot believe what you are watching.
6	It is three in the morning and you are still awake, going through tomorrow's speaking exam in your head.
7	You told your brother you had not touched his headphones. You had.
8	You stand up to speak in front of the class and, for the first time this year, you know you can do it.
9	Valencia score in the 93rd minute at Mestalla and the whole stand is on its feet.
10	Third week of revision, nothing is going in, and you cannot see the point of carrying on.

SAY IT PROPERLY

Do not answer with one word in class. Answer with the sentence: Number one is frustration, because he cannot do anything about it. The exam never gives you a mark for a single word.

TASK 2 One feeling, three words on your own, then compare

The rule the exam tests. An adjective ending in -ed says how the person feels. An adjective ending in -ing says what caused it. I was bored is about you. The film was boring is about the film. Get these the wrong way round and the sentence says something you did not mean.

	THE NOUN	HOW THE PERSON FEELS	WHAT CAUSES IT
1	amazement	amazed
2	frustration		frustrating
3		embarrassed
4	excitement
5	worry		worrying
6		annoyed	annoying
7	disappointment
8	confusion

TASK 2b Choose the right ending write the full word

Put the verb in brackets into the correct adjective form, -ed or -ing.

1. I was completely _____ (amaze) by the mascletà. I had never heard anything so loud.
2. Waiting for a bus that never comes is _____ (frustrate).
3. She felt _____ (embarrass) when she realised she had answered the wrong question.
4. The last episode of the series was really _____ (disappoint).
5. He is _____ (worry) about the speaking test on Thursday.
6. Two hours of grammar with no break is quite _____ (tire).

CAREFUL

Spanish lets you say estoy aburrido and es aburrido with the same word. English does not. Every time you say I am boring in class this year, I will ask you to say it again.

TASK 3 The person you could live with on your own, then in pairs

Mark each adjective + or - according to whether you would be pleased or worried to hear it about somebody. Then write its opposite. Two of them have no single opposite, so write a short phrase instead.

	ADJECTIVE	+ OR -	OPPOSITE
1	reliable
2	bad-tempered
3	loyal
4	mean
5	mature
6	aggressive
7	cheerful
8	gentle
9	stubborn
10	sensitive

THE ONE THAT GOES BOTH WAYS

Sensitive is not simply good or bad. It can mean that somebody understands other people's feelings, which is a compliment, or that they are easily upset, which is not. Write one sentence using it as a compliment, and one using it as a complaint.

TASK 3b Now agree in pairs, three minutes, out loud

You are sharing a flat in London for one month with somebody you have never met. Choose together the three qualities you most want in that person and the one you could not live with. You have to agree, so you will have to disagree first. Useful: I see what you mean, but · It depends what you mean by · I would rather have somebody who · That would drive me mad.

TASK 4 What you do, and what you are doing part A, on your own

Present simple for facts, permanent situations, habits and timetables. Present continuous for what is happening now, for temporary situations, for changing situations, for arrangements you have already made, and with always for a habit that annoys you. Some verbs, such as want, love, know and seem, do not normally take the continuous at all.

Put each verb in brackets into the present simple or the present continuous. There are eleven.

Hi Aidan,

Thanks for the photos. Shrewsbury _____ (look) tiny next to Valencia, but I _____ (love) that river.

Things here are strange at the moment. Normally I _____ (get) the metro to school at half past seven, but they _____ (repair) the line all this month, so I _____ (walk) instead. It _____ (take) me forty minutes, which is no disaster, because the Turia gardens _____ (be) on the way.

My sister _____ (stay) with us until December while her flat is finished. She _____ (always, leave) her wet towels on my bed.

Anyway, our train to Barcelona _____ (leave) at 7.40 on Friday, so I will not be online that morning. Write back before then. I _____ (want) to hear about the new school.

TASK 4 The grid for part B fill this in while you ask

	NORA	DIEGO
Lives
Studies or works
Doing this month or term
Always doing it, and it is annoying
Already arranged

TASK 4 Two people, half the facts each part B, in pairs, speaking

Fold this page along the line so that you can only see your own card. Student A takes the top card, Student B the bottom one. You each know about one person. Ask questions until you can both fill in the grid on page 4. Every answer is either present simple or present continuous, so the question has to be too: Where does she live? is a different question from Where is she living at the moment?

STUDENT AYou know about Nora

- She lives in Ruzafa, but this month she is staying at her grandmother's in Gandia, because the lift in her building is broken.
- She studies architecture, and she works in a café on Saturdays.
- She is learning French, because she is moving to Toulouse in January.
- She is always losing her keys.
- Her flight leaves at 6.15 on Sunday morning.

Ask Student B about Diego: where he lives · what he does · what he is doing this term · what he does on Sundays · the habit of his that annoys people · his fixed plan for July.

----- FOLD HERE -----

STUDENT BYou know about Diego

- He lives in Benimaclet and shares a flat with three other people.
- He teaches swimming at the pool every morning, and this term he is doing a course in sports nutrition.
- He spends most Sundays at his parents' house in Requena.
- He is always telling the same three stories.
- In July he is going to Shrewsbury to work at a summer camp.

Ask Student A about Nora: where she lives · where she is living this month and why · what she studies · why she is learning French · the habit of hers that annoys people · what time her flight leaves.

BEFORE THURSDAY

Write five true sentences about yourself, three in the present simple and two in the present continuous, and one more that is false. On Thursday your partner has to find the false one. Make it hard.
