

Unit 1, pages 8 and 9, in sixty minutes

READ THIS BEFORE THE RUN ORDER

This booklet is the Somerset half, not the book. The Student's Book is not on disk, so nothing here reproduces it. Open the book for the vocabulary and grammar boxes on pages 8 and 9, then use these five pages for the practice. Teacher's notes for this spread are at PDF pages 21 to 23 of Close_up_B2_Teachers_Book.md.

With two students there is no grouping decision. Everything is A and B. That also means nobody can hide, so the pace has to come from you, and silence lasts twice as long as it does in a group of six.

Víctor. The journal for 10 September says he finds it hard to speak confidently. Task 1 is built so he cannot dry up: the answer set is ten words on the page in front of him. In Task 4 part B his card carries the questions he has to ask, written out, so he never has to invent one cold. If he stalls anywhere, ask a prepared question rather than waiting: Which one is closest to you? · Say it again with the whole sentence. · Which word did you want there? Do not let a silence run in a class of two.

Martina. She learnt her English from series, so Task 1 and the speaking will come easily and the labelling will bore her. Her work is Task 2 and the letter, where the accuracy gap shows. If she finishes part A early, have her write next to each answer which of the six uses it is, in her own words. That is the piece she is missing, not the vocabulary.

Run order

TIME	BLOCK	WHAT YOU DO
16:20 3 min	Open	No warmer. Ask each of them for one thing that has annoyed them since Thursday, in a full sentence. That is the page 6 to 7 reading recycled in ninety seconds, and it puts the topic back in the room.
16:23 10 min	Task 1 page 1	Book closed, page 1 open. Martina reads 1 to 5, Víctor answers, then swap. Insist on the full sentence with because . Then open the Student's Book at page 8 and check against the book's own list.
16:33 12 min	Task 2 and 2b page 2	Grid alone, two minutes, then compare. Teach the -ed and -ing rule off the book box, not off the worksheet. Do sentence 1 together as the model. The Spanish note at the bottom of the page is the one they will remember, so say it out loud.
16:45 12 min	Task 3 and 3b page 3	Plus and minus alone, four minutes. Then sensitive , which is the teaching point of the page, not an aside. The flat-share argument must be out loud and must reach an agreement. Two students means they cannot avoid disagreeing.
16:57 10 min	Task 4 part A page 4	Silent, individual, eight minutes. Do not help. Check together by asking why for every answer, not what . The two stative verbs, love and want , are the ones worth stopping on.
17:07 11 min	Task 4 part B page 5 and grid on page 4	Fold page 5. Martina takes Nora, Víctor takes Diego. They ask, they do not read the card out. Both grids must be full before you stop. If one grid is empty, the questions were wrong, so do those two questions again properly.
17:18 2 min	Close	Set the five sentences for Thursday. Tell them Nora is going to Toulouse and Diego to Shrewsbury, and ask which one had the summer closer to theirs. Ten seconds each, and it lands.

IF YOU ARE BEHIND

Cut Task 3b, the flat-share argument, and cut it early rather than rushing part B. Never cut Task 4 part B. It is the only speaking in the hour and it is the only place the grammar gets produced rather than filled in. The Before Thursday task at the bottom of page 5 also covers it if the worst happens.

Answers, and what to say about them

Task 1, name the feeling

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
frustration	sympathy	relief	embarrassment	amazement	anxiety	guilt	confidence	joy	despair

Number 6 is the one they get wrong: they reach for nervous, which is an adjective, not the noun. Anxiety is the word the book wants. Number 10, despair, is stronger than anything they will have felt about revision, so let them enjoy the exaggeration.

Task 2, one feeling, three words

	NOUN	HOW THE PERSON FEELS	WHAT CAUSES IT
1	amazement	amazed	amazing
2	frustration	frustrated	frustrating
3	embarrassment	embarrassed	embarrassing
4	excitement	excited	exciting
5	worry	worried	worrying
6	annoyance	annoyed	annoying
7	disappointment	disappointed	disappointing
8	confusion	confused	confusing

Task 2b

1	2	3	4	5	6
amazed	frustrating	embarrassed	disappointing	worried	tiring

Task 3, personality

	ADJECTIVE	+ / -	OPPOSITE		ADJECTIVE	+ / -	OPPOSITE
1	reliable	+	unreliable	6	aggressive	-	calm, gentle
2	bad-tempered	-	good-tempered, cheerful	7	cheerful	+	miserable, gloomy
3	loyal	+	disloyal	8	gentle	+	rough, harsh
4	mean	-	kind, generous	9	stubborn	-	no single word: open to reason
5	mature	+	childish, immature	10	sensitive	both	insensitive

The two without a neat single opposite are stubborn and sensitive. Accept any sensible phrase. Sensitive is the item to spend a minute on: positive when it means understanding other people's feelings, negative when it means easily upset. The book makes the same point on page 8.

The grammar half

Task 4 part A, the letter

	ANSWER	WHY
1	looks	a general truth about the place
2	love	stative verb, no continuous
3	get	habit, and normally is the signal
4	are repairing	temporary, all this month
5	am walking	temporary situation, not his habit
6	takes	a fact
7	are	a permanent fact
8	is staying	temporary, until December
9	is always leaving	a habit that annoys him, which is why it is continuous
10	leaves	timetable, so present simple even though it is the future
11	want	stative verb

Numbers 9 and 10 are the two that separate a B2 student from a B1 one. Nine is not a mistake in the continuous, it is the whole point of it. Ten looks like a future and is not. If they get those two right and nothing else, the ten minutes were worth it.

Task 4 part B, model answers

	NORA	DIEGO
Lives	in Ruzafa, but she is staying in Gandia this month	in Benimaclet, shares with three others
Studies or works	studies architecture, works in a café on Saturdays	teaches swimming every morning
Doing this month or term	learning French	doing a sports nutrition course
Always doing it, and it is annoying	she is always losing her keys	he is always telling the same three stories
Already arranged	moving to Toulouse in January, flight leaves at 6.15	going to Shrewsbury in July
